But with a mill containing a battery of over 800 stamps working every day and night the year round. Nearly 1,000,000 tons of ore quarried out of a pit are ground to powder, and the small profit on each ton thus worked makes in the aggregate a handsome dividend for the stockholders.

Nearly all the paying quartz mines in the west are being operated profitably on the same principle, the handling of great masses of ore daily by approved methods of extraction and reduction.

These processes, which cost money and demand ingenuity, great economy and extensive experience, are the principal features of the business. Few fortunes are now made in mining by lucky discoveries.

Even the rich gold fields of the Klondike must hereafter be worked on the principle governing successful mining elsewhere to make them profitable.

To secure such extraordinary results from a poverty of materials, mining men have been required to apply the strictest rules of economy and a thorough knowledge of the forces of nature to their operations.

Intelligence, experience and courage have been the prime agents of success.

Mining success is becoming more and more dependent upon these elements, coupled, of course, with the use of money, for their employment, in the manner indicated, suggests the use of capital in large sums.

The most productive mine in California was on the market for years for a few thousand dollars, but no purchaser offered to buy it. During the first three months of this year it paid its owners $200,000, and in the course of three years it has paid dividends amounting to nearly $2,000,000.

It took big money to put the property in shape, and it also required the best of engineering skill, the economical use of every factor which was capable of contributing to a successful result.

The Transvaal mines, the best gold paying properties in the world—have been made to yield big profits through the exercise of similar qualities. And on these the future success of mining will be more dependent than it has been in the past.

In western Ontario we have a number of immense reefs which, with proper development and equipment, will in a few years rival the output of the great low grade properties of the Transvaal. Mining in Ontario has just passed the initial stage; it has been proven that we have great bodies of ore which can be worked at a profit with proper machinery and management.

The great gold mines here are those of the olden time, and they will continue energetically as ever to look after new fields to conquer, and that they have other promising prospects to test, some of which may, and probably will, prove as good as that on Denmark lake. The policy of never taking up a property that did not show up well on the surface, and dropping even that, if on a fall trial it did not satisfy, is a good one. In mining, permanent success is often the result of knowing when to stop making a hole in the ground. More mining companies are wrecked by the pouring of their funds into these holes than in any other way, but from such foolishness this company is not likely to fail. Last week a number of samples from the latest workings were brought in, owing however to the continued illness of the assayer, Mr. Brent, the results are not known.

Eagle Lake Properties.

E. Senger has just returned from the Eagle Lake district where he has been surveying a couple of properties for Messrs. Partington and Forneri. Three locations have been surveyed on the same vein, and about an eighth of a mile of stripping has been done. The lead is from four to six feet wide and very rich, lots of visible gold being in evidence. Development work is proving the splendid value of the vein, and will be continued until the owners are fully satisfied.

Messrs. Higbee and Prendebell are developing another valuable property in the Eagle Lake district for an American syndicate, and we understand are getting good results.

The Victor Gold Mining Co.

The directors of the "Victor Gold Mining Co., this week let a contract to J. Downey for sinking 100 feet on their property on Denmark lake. This property is situated next to the Little Bobs, and has an immense vein with good values on the surface. The company has the utmost confidence that the values will be maintained and increased with depth. A proper record will be kept of each stage of development. The personnel of the company's directors gives assurance that everything will be conducted most economically, with the best methods.

of more than twice as much gold in 1900, or more than twice as much during the 300 years preceding that period. The gold production of the world from 1492 to 1897 amounted to $3,120,750,000, while that of the period 1891-1897 was $5,665,741,000. The rapid increase in production in this country and the large exports of gold ports over imports have been accompanied by a corresponding increase in money in circulation in the United States, which, on July 1, 1899, stood at $265,500,000, compared with $253,380,000 in July, 1897, and $247,740,000 the year preceding, and in 1894 at $21,130,000.

Canada's Big Production.

"Canada will produce $50,000,000 in gold in 1900," said a well known mining engineer. "Klondike will produce $25,000,000, British Columbia about $12,000,000 and the rest of the country $13,000,000. I am inclined to think this estimate is not so far astray as the first guess might seem to indicate. I have met a dozen mining owners from Dawson, and all assure me that fully half the gold mined in Klondike is sent unexported out of the country. Mine owners do not like the ten per cent royalty on the gross output. They manage to evade the royalty altogether in some cases, and they never pay more than sixty per cent of what the law calls for. Hence, wholesale deception to evade the royalty, and the consequent inability of the statistician to discover the real amount of gold coming out of the district. Klondike has had an enormous output this year, and I really believe $35,000,000 is not an excessive estimate. Moreover, a vast amount of machinery is being imported, and claims are now being worked summer and winter, with the result of a greatly increased output. Indeed, the country, I believe, will in due time exceed the wildest predictions made for it a few years ago.—Butte Mining World.

that I didn't own the shoes to my feet. It was the hardest kind of work for me to raise a dollar. The gold, creek would sneer at me and called me a deadbeat, but there were a few exceptions. You were one. In your darkest hour you had confidence in me. When I wanted those coins removed, you didn't demand payment in advance."

"I wish I had!"

"No, sir. You trusted in my word, and you didn't seek to humiliate me, and you offered my deepest gratitude. I have offered to pay you five hundred, but I shall not stop there. I shall be 1,000 and more for you. Can you sell your business or give it away to a buyer or borrower?"

"Are you going to pay me the dollar?"

"I sternly demanded the check, and if you can't sell out, give it away. I'll take it up, throw it out of the window."

"continued the major as he walked about the room. "My dear man, listen to me. Four months ago I was based up for a quarter; today I have millions behind me—millions and millions. I may be said to swim in gold!"

"I'll be hanged if you look it!"

"And how has the clump-been brought about? By my illustrious genius, coupled with audacity. I look around for a ten strike. It was a little show in coming; but I hit it at last. What do you think of the Veal Culet Tablet company; capital, $50,000,000? There are the papers on my desk to perfect the organization and apportion the stock—over $2,000,000 of the stock subscribed for in advance at 70 cents on the dollar, and capitalists tumbling over each other to take the remainder. Doctor, let me congratulate you. Shake hands?"

"Over what? I'm after my dollar."

"Over your appointment as secretary of the company, at a salary of $10,000 a year, and you can begin work tomorrow. As an official you also have first choice of $20,000 worth of stock. Yet, I trusted Major Crofoot, and this is the result; this is your reward. Shake hands again."

"Not by a darn sight! You might as well give up trying to work any gold duck in on me. I want that dollar."

"And it was my genius and my financing which brought it about," said the major as he rubbed his hands and handed the check to the clerk on the shoulder. "The thought came to me while I was eating a veal culet at my hotel house. Our veal tablets are exact. I want the name implies. We require a culet for the table and then countress it and divide it into tablets. Every New Med—Yes, indeed; counted up to 18,000.

SUCCESS AND FAILURE.

The Higher the Purpose the Rarer the Achievement.

If, by success, we mean the full accomplishment of an end; the actual reaping of a harvest of results, then it is undoubtedly true that the higher and nobler the purpose the rarer will be the success. If we aim to relieve a man's hunger, we can quickly succeed in the easy task, but if we aim to inspire him with a desire to earn his own bread the work is more difficult and the success far more problematical. If we would restrain a thief from robbery, the prison bars and locks insure success, but if we would make an honest man of him our task is a complex one, and success may be afar off. We undertake to teach a child to read. If with persistent effort we follow up our task, we are successful; but if we aspire to raise the educational standard of our community how arduous the task, how uncertain the result, how questionable the success!

The man seeks little thing to do. Success is the result. The man aims with a great thing to pursue. Success is the result.

Is his life, then, a failure? No! let us never imagine that any high purpose, any noble thought, any generous emotion, any earnest effort, is ever lost. We may never witness its growth, we may not live to gather its fruit or even to see its blossoms, but we may safely trust that somewhere and at some time the harvest will be abundant, and success, long hidden, shall become apparent.

The Wickedest Bit of Sea.

Nine out of ten travelers would tell inquirers that the roughest piece of water is that cruel stretch in the English channel, and nine out of ten travelers would say what was not true. As a matter of fact, "the wickedest bit of sea" is not in the Dover strait, or in yachting, for example, from St. Jean de Luz up to Pauillac, or across the Mediterranean "Peace" from Cadiz to Tangier, nor is it in rounding Cape Horn, where there is what sailors call a "true" sea. The "wickedest sea" is encountered in rounding the Cape of Good Hope for the eastern ports of Cape Colony.—Shipping World.

to her present home, where in the presence of her mother and sister, she truly told the story of her sickness and recovery. She said: "A few years ago I suffered a severe attack of inflammation of the lungs, and was attended by one of the best physicians in the city. I pulled through but was left a complete wreck, so that I could not do any work, suffering all the time from palpitation of the heart, nervous prostration and a ringing sound in my head. I also had a distressing cough and for months I never knew what it was to have a good night's rest. For two years my life was a perfect misery to me and under the doctor's orders I took emulsion till I was nauseated with the sight of it, but did to no purpose. My life was despaired of by all my friends who were assured by the doctor that my case was beyond the reach of human skill. I was visited by the clergy of my church, and Sisters of Charity, who were very kind and sympathetic and looked upon me as one whose earthly race was about run. I experimented with all sorts of remedies for my cough, but without avail. My druggist at last advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Being fairly discouraged, nevertheless I was persuaded to make the trial, when to my surprise and joy of myself, family and friends, I began to get better, and by the time I had taken seven or eight boxes I was as well as you see me now," and she laughingly added, "I think you will admit that I don't look much like a sick woman." Her mother, who had been listening to the tale of her daughter's long illness, added: "It just seems like a dream to us all that we once despaired of her life, when we now see her the pink of health."

Mrs. Foran said that when on a visit to England about a year ago she contracted a heavy cold and was threatened with a return of her cough, but she at once got some of the pills and by the time she had reached New York she was as well as ever again. She related a number of instances in which she had advised persons suffering from chronic complaints to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and always with the best results. She mentioned particularly a niece of hers living in Boston who was run down and in a wretched condition of health, but was now a healthy young woman who owed the fact to the use of the pills. When the reporter was taking his leave Mrs. Foran said: "I am very glad to have the opportunity to testify what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and you can say that I shall never cease to sound their praises and I bless the good Lord that they were placed in my way at a time when I had not the hope that I could live."

Mr. Dymont will again be the Liberal standard bearer in West Algoma. The Conservative candidate is not definitely chosen as yet. Mr. A. C. He is one of the best public speakers in the riding, and with his splendid ability in other directions would make a good representative.

Mining investments pay a good percentage of interest as will be seen by the following dividends paid by companies making regular reports. In August the different companies paid $9,000,154. In the eight months of this year there was paid out $27,195,530, which is equal to eight per cent on the total capital stock of the companies reporting. Montana disbursed $9,683,825, or 2 per cent of its capital stock; Colorado, $85,124,189, or 7 1/2 per cent; Michigan, $2,799,000, or 28 per cent; Arizona, $1,965,855, or 20 per cent; Utah, $1,760,200, or three per cent; South Dakota, $855,000 or 3.8 per cent; Idaho, $875,000, or 6 1/2 per cent; Missouri-Kansas, $845,280, or 4 per cent; Alaska, $349,000 or five per cent; Washington, $105,000, or one per cent. Some may pass from Britain to America, but others will succeed. Change is not necessarily decay. And I wish Americans could understand that the industrial development of the United States is not regarded with jealousy and envy by Great Britain, but rather with the quiet pride with which a man watches the progress in life of his own son.

A Former Canadian.

The following extract is from the Helena, Montana, Sentinel. The Mr. Emmons referred to is a son of Mr. Edwin Emmons of this town. He is a candidate for the State legislature of Montana.

The recent state conventions, particularly the Labor and Populist conventions, afforded many men an opportunity to demonstrate the material of which they were made.

While there were many cases of personalty which might be passed over in silence, there were also shining examples of unquestioned integrity and true manhood. In a delegation which was sent right on all occasions R. A. Emmons of Carbon, proved himself the peer of the noblest of the true men of the convention. Every man from Carbon labored earnestly and honestly in the interest of the principles involved and no man in all the convention had a better record at the close than Emmons of Red Lodge.

Every true Populist and every true union man in the conventions has the highest regard and respect for him and will never miss an opportunity of letting the fact be known.

PURE CEYLON GREEN TEA OF THE "SALADA" MARK.
Colombo, Aug. 15, 1900.

Dear Sir,—

I have carefully examined and tasted the small sample of Tea marked "SALADA." Pure Uncolored Ceylon Green Tea" you sent me last night and find it as stated.

The tea has exceptional leaf fragrance and draws a choice, flavory, cowslip water, somewhat resembling a best grade Japan.

As a specimen of what Green Tea should be in the cup it would be almost impossible to improve on it.

If Ceylon planters will only be careful to ship greens up to this standard of excellence, the capture of the American markets is certain and assured.

Yours faithfully,

THE ONTARIO MINES ACT.

Some Extracts Taken From the Statistical Year Book of Canada.

ONTARIO.

The Mines Act of Ontario, provides for the abolition of all royalties imposed upon ores or minerals within the province. Reservations of gold, silver and other mines contained in any patent are made also void, and all such mines in and upon such lands are deemed to have been granted in fee simple and to have passed with the lands, excepting as to lands patented under the Free Grants and Homestead Act, and the Public Lands Act, being lands sold for agricultural purposes only.

Mines of nickel ore may be made workable under a license fee if the ores are not refined in Canada; but for the present this provision of the Act is held in abeyance.

Any person may explore for mines and minerals on any Crown land not staked out or occupied, and not withdrawn from sale by Order in Council as being valuable for pine timber or other reason. Crown lands supposed to contain ores or minerals may be sold as mining lands, called mining locations, or may, when situated within a mining division, be staked out and worked as mining claims under mining laws.

Mining locations containing not less than 10 acres, are sold as follows: If in a surveyed township and within six miles of a railway, $1.50 per acre; if within twelve miles, $3; if beyond twelve miles, $2.50; if in unsurveyed territory $3, $2.50 and $2, according to distance from railway. All these lands revert to the Crown in default of the expenditure in actual mining operations of $1 per acre during the first two years, and of $1 per acre in the third year of the next five years.

In addition to granting mining locations in the unpatented province, also grants leases of such lands for a term of ten years, and that the end of the term all rents have been paid and work in accordance with the law.

pending on the claim, or paid to the Mining Recorder in lieu. When $500 has been expended or paid, the locator may upon having a survey made and upon complying with certain other requirements, purchase the land at $5 per acre cash, but if the surface rights have already disposed of at $2 an acre.

A location for mining iron and mica not exceeding 180 acres may be granted, but if therein other valuable mineral is discovered the miner's right is limited to the area prescribed for other minerals, the remainder reverting to the Crown.

The patent for a mining location reserves forever whatever royalty may hereafter be imposed on the sales, such royalty to be collected on sales made prior to issue of patent.

Sulphur Will Not Quit Fires.

Grant me space in your paper to make more generally known a fact which has been known to me many years and doubtless to others, that sulphur thrown into the fire of a stove, furnace or fireplace will instantly extinguish the fire in a chimney or flue. If a small bag or parcel of sulphur, say three or four ounces, were kept in a handy place and used when needed as directed above, it might be the means of saving property and perhaps life.

A Success.

"Was the wedding a success?" "I guess so. The bride's mother was in tears, the groom's mother went here one better and had hysterics, you couldn't hear a word of the ceremony, and the church was so crowded that three women fainted. Yes, it was a success all right."

Milk is suggested as a good extinguishing agent for burning petroleum. It forms an emulsion with the oil, and by disturbing its cohesion attenuates the combustible element as water cannot.

Among the aborigines of Australia the most common form of punishment less than death is the sparing of the offender through different parts of the body.

Reading a Book.

A writer in the New York Medical Journal says that the curved pages of the ordinary book are injurious to the eye of the reader. The curvature necessitates a constant change of the focus of the eye as it reads from one side to another, and the ciliary muscles are under a constant strain. Moreover, the light falls unevenly upon both sides of the page, further interfering with a clear and sharp field of vision. It is suggested that the difficulty might be obviated if the pages should be printed parallel to the sides of the book at right angles to it.

Gold.

The gold of the world is spent by an act of the United States and is sold as a mine. The mines were subjected to people who were found guilty of paying the cost for the gold with the price of the gold, as men preferred working the fish to pulling the bow.

Canadians have a way of turning up in unexpected places at opportune moments. When Hawaii had a revolution an Ontario man led the armed forces, and when the Hawaiian queen's subjects tried to recapture their island home from the filibustering republican government, it was again a Canadian who was there to bear the brunt. When the revolution failed, it was a Canadian who conducted the prosecution of the rebels. When Aguinaldo massed his forces outside the city at Manila, when co-operating with Dewey, it was a Canadian who directed the sinking of trenches, mounting and working of cannon and the offensive operations which brought about the surrender of the Spanish forces. Now that the story of Peking is being told, it seems the hero of the hour again was a Canadian—indeed a native of the village of Macleod—Mr. Herbert G. Sparks, who was secretary of the United States legation and who superintended the defensive operations when the armed mounted legations "held the fort" at the British embassy.

Some months ago, Mr. A. Maurice Low contributed an article to the North American Review on the decline of British Commerce in which he asserted that if, during the next twenty-five years, Great Britain loses her trade as rapidly as she has during the quarter of a century from 1870 to 1895 she will have yielded her pre-eminence as the greatest of the world's commercial powers. Mr. Benjamin Taylor, a British writer on economics, replies to Mr. Low in the following number of the Review, and brings forward figures to show that instead of falling behind in the volume of her commerce she has been making gains, and broken through the ranks of the great powers.

"What a Bigness it is that she has solved the problem of the world's commerce. By means of her own ships, ports and lines in her own colonies, in the industrial activity and rapid prosperity of the country, and evidence of that dry rot and decline which Mr. Ernest Windous and Mr. Maurice Low think they have discovered, it is quite a mistake to suppose they are filled with a consuming desire to monopolize the trade of the world. They are not in the least alarmed at American competition, for

Wanted the DIAMOND DYES, but was induced by her Dealer to try Something Else.

A lady writing from a small town in New Brunswick to the proprietors of Diamond Dye, says:

"Please find enclosed Express Money Order for six packets of Diamond Dyes, colors as mentioned below. I have been a user of Diamond Dyes for over five years, and they have given me entire satisfaction. A few weeks ago our merchant was out of a color I wanted in the Diamond Dyes and strongly recommended another make he was selling. I bought the packet with many doubts as to their worth. I made an effort to dye an old cream colored opera shawl with the new dye. The result almost drove me mad. There was not a semblance of any decided color. Now I am obliged to dye it black, and will do the work with Diamond Dyes. No more poor muddy dyes for me while I can send you for the reliable Diamond Dyes."

A Splendid War Souvenir.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal have announced their two premium pictures for this season. One of them will be particularly pleasing to Canadians. It is entitled "Home From the War," a picture of one of Canada's soldiers returning home from the South African campaign. It ought to be a strong favorite in Canadian homes. The other is perhaps the most noted picture ever painted. It is a reproduction of the famous Hoffman's "Christ in the Temple." The Family Herald and Weekly Star Company certainly give subscribers a big dollar's worth if they keep on every Canadian's home will have their paper. Subscribers get both pictures with a year's subscription for one dollar.

A Cure for Rheumatism.

Mr. S. Mann Stittsville, Carleton Place, Ont., writes: "I was afflicted with rheumatism, had severe pains in the knees, hip joints and across the back. Rheumatism remedies did not help me and I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills which have since completely cured me. There is not the least trace of rheumatism left and I am no longer subject to biliousness, headache and stomach sickness which formerly attacked me frequently." One pill a dose, 25 cents a box.

A Drifting Wreck.

"What is a skeptic, pa?" "Well, the most hopeless kind of skeptic is a woman who has lost her faith in doctors."—Indianapolis Journal.

In addition to granting mining lands in fee simple, the province also grants leases of such lands for a term of ten years, and if at the end of the term all rents have been paid and working conditions performed the lessee will be entitled to a patent. The rental is $1 per acre for the first year and fifteen cents to 30 cents per acre per annum according to distance from the nearest railway and situation in townships or unsurveyed lands for subsequent years.

Miners' licenses in territories which may be set apart as mining divisions are granted for one year, on payment of $10, renewable for another year on payment of a like fee. The holder of a license may stake out a claim of 15 chains square, 22 acres, or 20 chains square, 40 acres, and he can hold it as long as mining operations are carried on upon a scale of one man's labor for five months, or its equivalent if two or more men are employed during each calendar year. Where the licensee desires to procure a patent or a lease of a claim he may do so by completing the working conditions at a rate of ten months of one man's labor on a claim of 22 acres, or of 15 months on a claim of 40 acres. But he is required to procure a survey of the land and to pay in the purchase money or first year's rental.

In unsurveyed lands of the Crown, outside of mining divisions the holder of a prospector's license, fee $10, may stake out two claims of 10 acres each and hold them for a period of two years by expending $3 per acre in the first year and $7 per acre in the second on development work, when the licensee may proceed in the usual way to acquire the property by survey and payment of the purchase price or the first year's rent.

GOLD QUARTZ CLAIMS.

Persons of 18 years and over, and joint stock companies holding a free miner's certificate, may obtain entry for a mining location.

A free miner's certificate (non-transferable) is granted for one or more years not exceeding five on payment in advance of this fee. The fee for an individual is $10, and to a joint stock company $50 to $100, according to capital.

The holder of a free miner's certificate who has discovered mineral in place, may locate a claim 1,500 feet by 1,500 feet, by marking it with two legal posts, one at each end, on the line of the lode or vein, and marking out the line between. Upon each post shall be marked the name of the claim, the person locating and date and the number of lying to the right and left of line.

The claim shall be recorded with the Mining Recorder of the district within 15 days, if located within 10 miles of the office, one additional day allowed for every additional 10 miles or fraction. If a claim is more than 100 miles from a recorder's office and situated where other claims are being located, five free miners may appoint a Free Miner's Recorder; but if the latter fails within three months to notify the nearest Government Mining Recorder of his appointment, the claims will not hold good. Fee for recording a claim is $5.

At least $100 per year must be ex-

In the treatment of skin diseases it is said that the rays of the sun are quite efficacious. They can't cure freckles, however.

He Walked The Floor

In Agony With Pains In the Back—Sleep Impossible—Medicine of no Avail Until He got Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. Patrick J. McLaughlin, Beauharnois, Que., states:—"I was troubled with Kidney Disease and Dyspepsia for 30 years and have been so bad that I could not sleep at nights on account of pains in the back, but would walk the floor all night and suffered terrible agony."

"I tried all sorts of medicines but got no relief until I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. They made a new man of me, and the old troubles seem to be driven out of my system."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have an enormous sale and owe their popularity to the fact that they can be absolutely relied upon to cure all ailments of the kidneys, liver, and stomach. They are purely vegetable in composition, prompt and effective in action, and cure permanently. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmansons, Bates and Co, Toronto.

It Hurt To Eat.

The pain, nausea and distress that Dyspeptics suffer after every meal can all be permanently removed by Burdock Blood Bitters.

It tones up and restores the stomach to normal condition so that it digests food without causing discomfort.

Here's proof positive:

Miss Maggie Spauld, Dalhousie, N.B., wrote the following: "I have been a sufferer from Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia for the past two years and felt very miserable. I could not take much food as it hurt me to eat. My friends said, 'Why don't you try B.B.B.' I did so, using two bottles, which made such a complete cure that I can now eat anything I like without it causing me discomfort."

ALL modern novels cannot safely be admitted into the home circle. Many of them are dangerous to the young and of doubtful benefit to the mature. They may be strong and entertaining, but their influence is not always for good.

The stories of Rev. Chas. Sheldon commend themselves to everyone for the fact that they are pure and their influence is for good.

"Malcolm Kirk" is a tale that will interest anybody. It is one of Mr. Sheldon's greatest efforts, because it is simply a story of human life such as any novelist might write. Beyond and better than this, it is a story that cannot but do good in any community where it is gene ally read.

We earnestly commend to our readers. His personal life will give you higher ideals of life.

Christian Endeavor Convention.

Report of the Proceedings at Guelph
October 2, 3, and 4.

The twelfth and most interesting convention of the Ontario Christian Endeavor union has passed into history. Some anxiety was expressed by the executive, as to the attendance at this convention, on account of the resolution that was passed at Hamilton in 1898, which does away with the free billowing system, but the delegates came notwithstanding these restrictions. There were in attendance over 200 delegates and the single rate was spent on all the railroads.

There was not a weak spot in all the program which covered the three days of the convention, the subjects were practical and popular, and the speakers were the best that have been heard in any of the C.E. conventions held in this province, not excepting the international of 1891 which was held in Montreal.

The local committee did their work well and the holding and registration arrangements went very smoothly at the centrally located headquarters in Chalmers Presbyterian church.

Rev. Chas. M. Sheldon, of Topeka, Kansas, and Wm. Shaw, of Boston, were the leading speakers from the United States, and in honor of them as well as the birthplace of Christian Endeavor, the Stars and Stripes at the Union Jack were draped from the pulpit of the convention church and the hymns joined together beneath the weight of the bible expressing the sentiment of the convention towards Christianity.

The addresses of welcome given by Dr. Bannock, Rev. W. J. Hindley, W. E. Graham and Mayer Nelson were suitably replied to by Rev. W. F. Wilson, of Hamilton, whose eloquence really put him before famous.

"The gentleman said he was highly honored to speak for the Endeavorers of Ontario who were now over 100,000 strong and an organization who love their home better than the nation, the church better than the nation, the athlete better than the gambler, the bible better than the novel."

Wm. Shaw's address on "Lessons on religious work the nineteenth century ought to take" was very much appreciated and a very cordial reception will be given. Mr. Shaw when he comes back to Canada.

Only one speaker on the program was absent, Rev. Jas. Elliott, of Kingston, and he sent his address to be read.

Wm. B. McIntosh, of Eldora, Iowa, and the social side of the convention and Dr. M. Steele, of Tavistock, the literary side of Endeavor then Wm. Shaw followed with a round table conference.

From local rallies were held in Missionary banner, and Lambton the banner for the most aggressive work. The Junior rally was quite unique and, pretty, the Guelph Juniors acquitting themselves splendidly as also did the Clinton Juniors, who gave a Bible drill.

The two largest churches in Guelph, Chalmers and Norfolk street, were taxed to their utmost capacity on the closing evening of the convention when hundreds were turned away. Rev. Chas. M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," Rev. J. L. Gilmour, of Hamilton, and Rev. W. G. Howson, of Clinton, were the speakers of the evening.

Rev. Shelton spoke in both churches on the subject "The Opera Door," and was greeted with a splendid ovation as the audience gave the Chataqua salute and sang "Blest be the tie that binds."

The next convention will be held in Brockville, October, 1901.

THE AUSTRALIAN COMEDY CO.

Appear at the Hilliard Opera House to Good Audiences.

One of the brightest companies that has ever appeared at the Hilliard opera house occupied the boards the first three evenings of this week. The Australian Comedy Co. is not a large company, but is composed of a number of light people, and they attracted large audiences. The stigma attaching to Sapfo on account of the notoriety it achieved in New York through Olga Nethersole probably kept a number of people from attending. Through the moral tenor of the play does not appeal to Anglo-Saxons, yet the company handled what might be objectionable features in a manner which could suggest nothing immoral. Miss George Elliot is a splendid actress and took the difficult role of Sapfo to perfection. Mr. Alec Cochrane, who took the part of Jean Gaussin is an actor of good ability, with a splendid voice. He was, however, laboring under a great disadvantage while here on account of inflammation in the eyes, and of course did not appear at his best.

The company produced Caste on Tuesday and His Night Out on Wednesday evening. The latter play was very funny and kept the audience in laughter. The piece abounds in ludicrous situations and in bits of amusement.

Died From His Injuries.

Tobacco, Oct. 11.—Isaac Warner, keeper of the Toronto government piggery at Hamber, died late last night as the result of the injuries he sustained in a scuffle with Edward Towner a few days ago, resulting from a hot political discussion. Towner is at present held on a charge of wounding.

The production of gold in the United States during the last four years has shown a steady gain, growing from $53,088,000 in 1896 to $72,500,000 in 1899. NOT A MAN IN TOWN COULD BLOW

Pap Perkins, the Postmaster of Jericho, Tells About the Meeting Which Discussed the Advantages of Starting a Brass Band.

(Copyright, 1900, by C. B. Lewis.)

"Look here, pap," said Squar Johnson as he dropped into the postoffice one day when I was alone. "I've got a scheme on hand that'll do more to boost the town of Jericho to the top of the ladder than 40 miles of new sidewalk. Yes, sir, it's a boomer, and if it's carried out you'll see the price of real estate jump 50 per cent."

He waited for me to get my breath and then lowered his voice and continued:

"Pap, I've got a notice written out for all patriotic citizens of Jericho to assemble at the postoffice this evening, and I'll post her up on the door. I want to spring it on 'em all of a sudden. I want to see 'em turn pale and their hair stand up. Jest say to all inquirers, pap, that Jericho is comin' right to the front like a steer goin' for a cornfield."

I wanted to know what the scheme was, but the squar winked and nodded and looked mysterious and went off

THE CRIMINAL CUCKOO.

He is the One Exception to the Kindly Nature of Birds.

Bad temper and cruelty are perhaps the most obvious signs of mental degeneration in the beasts. The larger monkeys, for instance, become as bad tempered as a violent man when they grow old, and many in their treatment of other animals are cruel as we use the word in regard to man. Among the carnivorous beasts the cat amuses itself by torturing a mouse, and the weasel tribe kill for sheer love of killing. No such cruelty is seen among eagles or falcons. Pierce as their temperers are, they do not torment other birds which they catch or kill for killing's sake. Good temper is general among birds.

Except the cuckoo, such a thing as an ill tempered wild bird is unknown. Nowhere in the race can a temper like that of the Tasmanian devil or the wild hunting dog or the Cape buffalo on the hyoon be found. Even those which in spring are thieves and egg robbers are not mauvais coupleurs at other times. Good temper and good fellowship in society, a personal affection to each other to which the beasts offer no parallel, industry and independence, intense devotion and foresight in tending their young, with other very human and engaging traits of character, must all be credited to the race of birds.

Among these kindly and simple natures the cuckoo is a monster. Let there be no mistake on this subject. He unites in his life and character, from the egg to the adult bird, practices and principles to which the whole race of warm blooded animals offers no parallel. He is an outrage on the moral law of bird life, something so flagrant and so utterly foreign to the way of thought of these kindly beings that if he did not exist he would be inconceivable. It is not merely that he is a supplanter and a changeling. His whole nature is so evil that in the world of birds he is an incarnation of the principle of ill, an embodiment of vices which would if understood or adapted by other birds put an end to the existence of the race.—London Spectator.

Without given his secret away. There was a great deal of curiosity during the day. Some thought the squar had a balloon ascension in view in order to attract public attention to our new cooper shop, and others had it that he had found a way to dodge the state tax, but it was all guesswork. There was a tremendous crowd on hand when evening came, and the squar went around rubbing his hands together and smiling all over his face. When he had got the crowd worked up to the pitch where everybody wanted to do for liberty, he called the meeting to order and said:

"Fellow citizens of Jericho, we have here a beautiful town, a splendid climate and a population to be proud of. We have the best of water, the lowest of taxes and skapsy any use for doctors. We have the telephone, electric streetcars and a town pump. A stranger would look around him and say we

TRAINING WATCHDOGS.

The Method That Is Used by a German Instructor.

Although it is generally believed that watchdogs are "to the manner born" it seems that a certain amount of training is a very much to turn out a very good one. This system of training is adopted into a regular course. In, where one Herr Strauch, an academy from which a watchdog was turned out by the London Spectator.

His system is efficient and is applied to almost every kind of dog. He teaches the animal obedience in training it to perform certain commands and then teaches it to be friendly between a visitor and a burglar and what part of a man's leg should be attacked to render the man helpless.

Outside of the gate the trainer places

Secrets.

Women can keep secrets. They often keep secret for a long time the fact that they are suffering from drains, inflammation, ulceration, or female weakness. But they can't keep the secret very long, because the hollow eyes, cheeks that have lost their freshness, and the irritability which comes from sorely tried nerves, all conspire to publish the story of suffering. The usual motive for such secrecy, dread of indelicate questions and offensive examinations, is removed by Dr. Pierce's methods. Diseases of the womanly organs are perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Sick women can consult Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., by letter free.

"Your wonderful medicine," "Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. C. N. Anderson, of Rockbridge Baths, Rockbridge Co., Va., "is a God-send to weak and sickly women restoring good health without subjecting their weak nerves to the shock of an examination. I was all run down in health; could not work but a short time without resting. Was very nervous and had a very poor appetite. I decided to write to Dr. Pierce and state my case, and am thankful that I did for I received a favorable reply. I took six bottles of 'Favorite Prescription,' one of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and one vial of 'Pellets,' and I can now work as well as I could before I was taken sick. I think Dr. Pierce's medicine is the best in the world for sick and nervous women."

Malcom Kirk, hasn't said a word about the little man who had spoken. "What are you going to do?"

A member of the class turned toward the future sitting on the floor. It was noticeably late several of the class shifted around. "What are you doing?" there was a cultured look in the face and every man's face was a picture of malnourished, languishing and half-consciousness.

Malcom Kirk smiled slightly as he looked up. He did not look at any one in the class in particular, but he seemed to make them all in a friendly way. That was unfortunate and

Kirk and the companion who had had his hand on his friend's arm remained a little while on the steps. "What will you do, Kirk?"

"I think I shall offer myself to the Home Missionary society and ask them to send me to the farthest place they can find out west somewhere."

"How about all your scholarship money, your ability?" The other man hesitated for the right word.

Kirk smiled slightly, the first indication he had shown of sensitiveness in that direction.

"I can use anything I know any where," he said, "even if I have to go into the streets and speak from the top of a wagon and never have a chance. But I do want a parish at a place where I can love people like you. I feel hungry to have a parish like yours."

The other man was silent. He had never felt just like that, but he thought he could understand.

"I hope you will have such a church sometime. I would like to be a member of it."

"Thank you," Kirk smiled. "Wilson, if you were that church I would have a unanimous call. I am sure there is a work for me somewhere in God's great world, else why did he give me such a passion to speak to men and love them?"

Malcom Kirk looked out across the great seminary campus and spoke with a conscious cry of heart longing. The beautiful June day was nearly gone.

voice. It had a carrying quality that commanded attention and held it. And nearly every man on the seminary faculty was wondering why Kirk had received no call from any church. There was no question as to his ability. He had both brains and heart. It is true his face and figure were not in his favor. He was not of the orthodox ministerial cut. His clothes were not a very good fit. But when the churches looking for a fashion plate for an ornamental figure behind the pulpit?

In the audience that gathering there were also two other persons who paid close attention to Kirk while he was speaking. One of these was a young man nearly Kirk's age, with a face and manner that spoke of the most sensitive, refined breeding. It was the face of a dreamer—dark eyes, waving dark hair, handsome features, thin, delicate, curved lips and the hands of an artist. His clothes were made of the finest material and bore the stamp of that mysterious, yet manly feeling which always goes with a man who has all his life been used to expensive details.

As he sat there listening to Malcom Kirk this morning, Francis Raleigh was attracted by the voice of the speaker. He had listened to the others with a conventional interest that did not mean anything to him. He started the moment that Kirk spoke the first word and fastened his look upon him until he was through. He then resumed his previous attitude of mild indifference to the programme.

The other person who followed Kirk's speech with especial interest was a young woman who sat in that part of the church reserved for the trustees of the seminary and their families. It is said that the young woman who works in the nitroglycerin and dynamite establishment at Ardree, Scotland, lays the most perfect complexions in the world, owing to the nature of the peculiar materials they handle and breathe. It is very certain that Dorothy Gilbert had never lived or worked in any more explosive atmosphere than that of her own intense energy, but her face would fairly have rivaled that of any Scotch lass in Ardree. There was a striking resemblance in many ways to Francis Raleigh's beauty. It might have been due to the similarity in training and in tastes. The New England type of independent, morally calm, but thoroughly interested activity, was well represented in Dorothy Gilbert. Her father sat beside her, a dignified, carefully dressed man of 55, iron gray hair and moustache, a successful book publisher, with a beautiful home in Hermon and business in Boston. Dorothy was the only child at home. She had graduated a year before at Northampton and was now taking a special course in music, going to the city three days in the week.

She did not attempt to reason with herself about the interest she felt in Malcom Kirk's appearance. Theologues in general were mildly stupid creatures to her. She had been born and brought up in Hermon and classed

CHAPTER II.
KIRK RECEIVES HIS SECOND CALL AND ANSWERS IT.

"I'm superintendent of missions for Kansas. I want you to take a church out there. You're just the man I've been looking for. Don't say 'No' for I must have you."

Kirk looked at the superintendent thoughtfully. Was this the second call he had mentioned?

"There's this scholarship. I feel the need of the training abroad."

"All right. Go on with that. But there's a church that will be ready for you at the end of your year there. It's in the growing town of Conrad and a great opening for hard work. The man there now will leave at the end of the year."

Kirk said nothing. He looked out of his window. Right across the campus stood the beautiful residence of Dorothy Gilbert's father. It was not the first time he had looked in that direction.

"Of course," continued the superintendent briskly, "you understand the church is a huge missionary church and cannot offer you a large salary. They can raise perhaps $400, or possibly $450. The society will grant $200 or $250. You could count on about $800 probably."

Kirk was silent. He turned his head away from the window and glanced around his room. The shabby backed books, the simple pieces of furniture, the faded carpet, the meager furnishings, all smote him keenly. It was not the first time his poverty had thrust itself upon him coarsely, but he seemed to feel it more deeply than ever. As he faced the superintendent who was waiting for a reply Kirk had a most astonishing and absurd feeling come over him. He was not thinking about his German scholarship or about the superintendent. The superintendent would have been smitten into bewilderment if he could have read Kirk's thought. What Kirk was saying to himself was, "How can Dorothy Gilbert and I live on $800 a year in a home missionary church?"

"Well," the superintendent spoke, with a slight trace of impatience, "what do you say? Give me a favorable answer. You can make your mark out there; plenty of hard work, but a good field. Tell me you'll take it."

"Very well, I promise to take the field if it is open when I finish my studies abroad."

Kirk spoke quietly, but his lips closed firmly, and he turned his head and looked out over the campus again.

There was a little more talk between them, and the superintendent went out.

The minute he was gone Kirk pulled down his curtains and locked his door. It was a little after noon, and the regular commencement dinner was served at 1. He walked up and down his darkened room talking to himself. His future was at last decided—at least for a time. He had some place in the world. Some one wanted him. He was $700 and he had gone to Boston and engaged his passage in the intermediate cab in he felt as if he had a very interesting year's life before him.

He had come back to his room and made his final preparations for leaving. They were very simple necessarily. He was going right handed to live in the most frugal, economical manner possible. It was now Tuesday evening. His vessel sailed Thursday afternoon. He was all ready to go, and yet he had an irresistible longing to see Dorothy Gilbert before he went.

He fought against the inclination until six o'clock and then did what he knew he would do all along—he dressed in the most careful manner he knew how and walked straight across the campus to her house.

As he went up the steps he heard the piano. Dorothy was playing. When he was in the hall, he glanced into the parlor and saw Francis Raleigh standing there.

Then a fit of timidity seized him. Something in Raleigh's face and manner made him feel that it was impossible to see Dorothy Gilbert with the gifted artist. He asked the servant if Mr. Gilbert was at home and said he wanted to see him a few moments.

It was the nearest to a lie that Malcom Kirk ever approached. However, when the servant ushered him into Mr. Gilbert's library he was not sorry to have a talk with the publisher.

Mr. Gilbert had been abroad. Kirk asked him several questions about cities and people on the continent. He grew every moment more interested and staid for more than an hour. Mr. Gilbert insisted on presenting him with two or three copies of Baedeker and followed him out into the hall when he finally rose to go, wishing him a successful year of study.

The piano had stopped, and the door into the parlor was closed, but Kirk could hear voices, and it seemed to him that they were unusually earnest. He imagined he could detect a tone of pleading in one of them.

He went out into the night and walked the seminary campus under the grave elms for two of three hours. He felt disappointed. He went over his prospects. He viewed from all sides his position as a man with a career, and before he let himself into his library room he had gone down into a depth of self-depreciation that measured a valley of humiliation for him.

But when he awoke the next day he determined, with a dull obstinacy that was a part of his character, that he would see Dorothy Gilbert before he went away. And when evening came he walked over to the house again.

She was playing the piano again, but this time alone. She turned around as Kirk entered and smiled as if she were glad to see him, and before he had time to think of any possible shyness he was talking about his prospects, the places he expected to visit, the methods he was planning to use.

As the talk went on Dorothy Gilbert grew more interested. Kirk's voice had and then his fingers closed slowly over it. He looked up at her again. She had turned away and was nervously tracing lines with her fingers on the table.

"I have no excuse to offer for what I have done," he said, and there was that in his voice that made Dorothy look up.

"I realize all the distance between us. It will do you no harm to let me have the picture and maybe the book."

"I have not let you have it. It seems to me you have taken it away."

Prof. W. M. Strong, of Princeton, has written an article (in "The Youth's Companion" of October 31). He paints a vivid picture of the early hardships and struggles of a boy of humble origin who became the greatest soldier and statesman of his time, and savior of the French.
